FOR SWINDLING BOSTON BANKS.

ARREST OF A MAN ACCUSED OF GETTING NEARLY $100,000 BY FALSE PRETENCES.

Philadelphia, April 8.-George B. White, of Hyndman, Penn., who is wanted in Boston to answer a charge of obtaining money from several Boston banks by misrepresentations, was arrested in this city to-day and held to await requisition papers from Massachusetts. In 1893 White and his brother were engaged in the leather business at No. 226 Purchase-st., Boston, under the firm name of W. S. White & Co., and they obtained, it is alleged, nearly $100,000 from Boston banks, the Continental, the Commercial, the Manufacturers', the Bank of the Republic, and the Merchants' being among the institutions which are said to have loaned money to Captain Dugan of the Boston Detective Bureau, who appeared against White when he was arraigned to-day, said the firm of W. S. White & Co. had represented to the banks that they were worth $1,200,000, and had by this means secured large loans from these institutions during April, May, June and July, 1893. The firm, he said, failed in September, 1893, and George B. White came to Philadelphia, where he was arrested. Requisition papers were taken out, but in the mean time White went to South America. Since then all trace of him had been lost until a few weeks ago, when the Boston police learned that he was in this city. It is said that the total amount of money borrowed by the firm will reach 175,000. Maryland and Pennsylvania banks are said to have suffered to a considerable extent through loans to White & Co.
